

SeaShare Names E&E Foods 2020 Donor of the Year

April 14, 2021

Non-profit SeaShare named E&E Foods its 2020 Donor of the Year. Last year, the company donated 232,000 seafood servings to food banks and feeding centers.

At the start of the pandemic, E&E also donated 101,000 pounds of seafood to Seashare that would be distributed to food banks. SeaShare and E&E Foods have been partners for eight years, working to provide seafood to those in need. E&E Foods produces, sources and trades seafood products from Alaska and the North Pacific.

“E&E is very privileged to receive the Donor of the Year award. We are happy to help in distributing the most eco-friendly and nutritious protein available, which is seafood! This honor was all made possible by the generous donations from our employees, who have continued to accept the challenge of supporting our tradition of helping to feed the hungry,” said Tab Goto, E&E Chairman.

“E&E and its employees have helped us feed thousands of families over the years. Their generosity and leadership have been instrumental as we respond to the current pandemic,” said Jim Harmon, Executive Director of SeaShare.

Photo Credit: SeaShare

Photo Caption: From left to right: Jim Harmon, SeaShare; Sydney Sackett, E&E; Casey Campbell, SeaShare board member; Ken Ng, E&E, Tab Goto, E&E.

Ryan Doyle
Urner Barry
1-732-240-5330
rdoyle@urnerbarry.com

April 13, 2021

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

E&E Foods Receives 2020 Donor of the Year Award

SeaShare Partner Lauded for Commitment to Ensuring Seafood is Offered at Food Banks

BAINBRIDGE ISLAND, WA — Seashare, a non-profit dedicated to providing nutritious seafood to the national food bank network, recently recognized E&E Foods with its 2020 Donor of the Year Award. The Seattle-based seafood company rallied its employees at the end of the year to donate generously to SeaShare, and the results provided more than 232,000 seafood servings to food banks and feeding centers.

E&E also donated 101,000 pounds of seafood to the nonprofit for food bank distribution at the beginning of the pandemic. The seafood company has partnered with SeaShare for eight years to help feed nutritious seafood to those in need.

“E&E is very privileged to receive the Donor of the Year award. We are happy to help in distributing the most eco-friendly and nutritious protein available, which is seafood! This honor was all made possible by the generous donations from our employees, who have continued to accept the challenge of supporting our tradition of helping to feed the hungry,” said Tab Goto, E&E Chairman.

“E&E and its employees have helped us feed thousands of families over the years. Their generosity and leadership have been instrumental as we respond to the current pandemic,” said Jim Harmon, Executive Director of SeaShare.

###

About SeaShare: SeaShare (<http://www.seashare.org>) is a 501c3 nonprofit based on Bainbridge Island, WA, founded in 1994 to combine the resources of the U.S. seafood industry to fight hunger. It is the only U.S. nonprofit focused on seafood as a source of nutrition for food banks and has distributed over 250 million servings. For more information, or to find out how you can get involved, visit <https://www.seashare.org> (<https://www.seashare.org>) and follow us on Facebook (<https://www.facebook.com/SeaShareOrg/>), Instagram (<https://www.instagram.com/seashareorg/>), and Twitter (<https://t>).